SA Police Legacy will support your family

Did you know that you remain a member of SA Police Legacy when you retire?

For as little as $2 per fortnight you can continue to support your family and our Police community when they need it most (donations over $2 are tax deductible).

Our support to police officers and their families does not end when you retire

You and your loved one receive a number of benefits:
- Updates including news and events in the Police community.
- Should something happen to you, we will be there to support your loved one with:
  - Financial support so that your spouse/partner can update their will;
  - welcoming your spouse/partner into the SA Police Legacy community, providing emotional support and social connection, including coffee catch ups, lunches, dinners, events and holidays; and
  - we will remember you in our Honour Roll.

It's easy to donate

- Make fortnightly donations through SA Police Super from your pension.

The work of a police officer is one of the community's highest callings, and it is important to make sure the memory of those serving and retired SA police officers who have lost their lives continues to live on and be celebrated. By continuing to donate to SA Police Legacy you ensure that our service of supporting bereaved families and maintaining the honour roll remains.
